The learning and preparation you do prior to rabbinical school is an essential part of your path to the rabbinate. It is a time to deepen your Jewish knowledge and practice. We offer this learning guide to support you in your preparations for this path. As a pluralistic school, we do not have prescriptions for what you should believe or how you should live as Jews. Rather, we support each other in a search for a meaningful and authentic engagement with Jewish tradition. This guide offers a variety of perspectives to help you gain knowledge and deepen your personal practice.
