This course traces the evolution of the mashal, the Jewish parable, within diverse genres and historical periods. After a brief review of ancient and rabbinic parables, we will focus on transformations of the mashal in modern Jewish culture. Units will include Jewish fables; Hasidic and neo-Hasidic tales; modernist tales by Kafka, Agnon, Buber, and Peretz; and tales after the Shoah; and short stories by contemporary American and Israeli writers. All works will be read in translation. Our class time will be devoted to focused discussions of the texts and some secondary sources, but there will also be opportunities for independent research, an oral presentation, and creative writing.

Readings will be posted on Schoology in advance of the course. Students will be expected to have read the materials in advance of the course and recorded responses to those readings.

On campus, in-person sessions, Monday – Thursday July 25-28, 9:00 AM – 5:00 PM

Through exposure to core historical knowledge, investigation of foundational documents and exploration of contemporary Israeli society, this course will help students design personal approaches to teaching Israel in their own communities. We will consider essential questions such as Israel's centrality in the Jewish narrative, understanding Israel in context, and making room for multiple voices to be heard. Emphasis will be on creating authentic connections for ourselves and for our communities.
